Vote DAVE HILL
Labour

for a LOCAL · ACTIVE · EFFECTIVE MP
in Brighton Pavilion on June 11 1987

Dave Hill is local, active and effective.

In his 12 years as a Councillor in Brighton his concern and campaigning for the people of Brighton has become known to all.

Ask almost anyone and they will know someone he has helped.

- Dave is Brighton's foremost campaigner for education for smaller class sizes, for nursery education and in opposing Tory plans to replace student grants by loans. He played a major part in recently securing 100 extra teachers for local schools.
- He is the leader of the Brighton Campaign for the Elderly calling for a better deal for pensioners, housing and social services.
- He has also been leading the campaign in East Sussex against the South African apartheid regime – he believes in social justice at home and abroad.
- He supports abolition of blood sports and a charter to control and reduce experiments on animals.

Dave Hill is 41, and trains teachers in a local college.

He has written a number of books and articles on education and international politics.

He went to Westlain School in Brighton and studied at Sussex, London and Manchester Universities.
